

How Our Facilitated Sessions Can Help You

When organisations are in times of challenge or change, it is often good to have a collaborative and facilitated workshop or session to assist with the setting of new goals and direction.

Normally we would find these in a sales environment once a new competitor has entered the market or there has been a sudden change in customer buying patterns. Alternatively the client may be wanting to set a new strategic vision for the future, the organisation is going through large change and new goals need to be set, or there is plenty of conflict in the organisation that needs to be defused.

We also find that the more successful organisations have these sessions once a year to ensure that everyone is on board with goals, targets and vision whether strategic or operational.

Typically the Staff Training facilitators will take an organisation through the steps of structured Brain Storming, Collaborative and Goal Setting workshops. These normally include periods of team building and feedback between groups along every step of the way, and participants walk away with clear goals and the relevant action items.

Your facilitated sessions could look something like this:
